Introduction

The Surveillance Devices Act 2007 (NSW) (the Act) allows for the use of surveillance devices to investigate crime and to enable evidence to be obtained of the commission of such crime or the identity or location of the offender(s). The Act covers the installation, use and maintenance of listening, optical, tracking, and data surveillance devices and restricts the communication and publication of private conversations, surveillance activities, and information obtained from their use.

The Act also establishes an accountability regime. Reporting and record keeping obligations are imposed on the law enforcement agencies eligible to use surveillance devices as are provisions for the safe keeping and destruction of information obtained from the use of surveillance devices.

The Act requires the NSW Ombudsman to conduct inspections of the surveillance device records of law enforcement agencies to determine the extent of compliance by those agencies and their officers with the Act.

Four law enforcement agencies<sup>1</sup> are currently the subject of these inspections:

- NSW Police Force
- NSW Crime Commission
- The Police Integrity Commission
- The Independent Commission Against Corruption

Legislative Changes

There have been no amendments to legislation affecting surveillance devices during the reporting period.

Reporting requirements

The Ombudsman is required by section 49(1) of the Act to report to the Minister at six monthly intervals on the results of inspections. The Minister is required by section 49(2) to lay the report or cause the report to be laid before both Houses of Parliament within 15 days after receiving the report.

This report is for the period 1 July 2015 to 31 December 2015.

Scope of the inspection

The aim of the Act is to enable law enforcement agencies to utilise surveillance devices to assist in the successful investigation and prosecution of certain offences. Such use is, of course, subject to meeting certain procedural and record keeping requirements. The inspection and monitoring by the Ombudsman aims to foster agency compliance with the Act and to provide public accountability through regular reporting to the Minister and Parliament. The approach taken in the inspections conducted by the Ombudsman is to examine the records of each agency for compliance with the record and document keeping requirements, while at the same time considering such other aspects of compliance as can be determined from those records and from questions asked of relevant officers.

Inspections focus on compliance outlined in three main areas of the Act:

- Part 3 dealing with warrants and emergency authorisations.
- Part 5 covering compliance and monitoring, including dealing with records obtained by use of surveillance devices, the use, communication or publication of protected information, reporting and record keeping.
- Part 6 requiring notification to the Attorney about warrants sought, as well as notification to the subject of surveillance if directed by the eligible Judge.

Surveillance device warrants are issued by eligible Judges of the Supreme Court or eligible Magistrates in the case of a surveillance device warrant authorising the use of a tracking device only, or for a retrieval warrant in respect of a tracking device. Applications must include certain information and be accompanied by an affidavit setting out the grounds for seeking the warrant. While the inspection of the records includes an examination of the matters required to be specified, it does not examine the sufficiency or otherwise of the information provided in support of the application. That is for the relevant judicial officer to determine.

The Ombudsman inspects each individual surveillance device warrant file at each agency. The inspection includes examining the application, warrant, notice to the Attorney General and the report to the issuing judicial officer and the Attorney General, and any other information contained on the file.

The inspection involves checking that:

- the application is made to an eligible Judge or, in appropriate cases, an eligible Magistrate
- the application includes the name of the applicant and the nature and duration of the warrant including the kind of device sought and is supported by an affidavit
- the warrant contains the information required by section 20
- any extension or variation to the warrant complies with section 22
- the revocation of a warrant complies with section 23
- the appropriate law enforcement officer notifies the chief officer immediately they are satisfied the use of the warrant is no longer necessary, and the chief officer takes steps to discontinue the use of the device or devices as soon as practicable
- where a warrant has been revoked the use of the device is discontinued immediately
- the section 51 notice contains the required information and has been provided to the Attorney General before the warrant has been issued, and that the Attorney General has been given an opportunity to be heard on the application if so desired
- the report under section 44 has been provided to the eligible judge and the Attorney General within the time specified in the warrant
- the report complies with the requirements of section 41
- the application for continued use of an authorised surveillance device in an emergency situation complies with sections 31-32
- where a surveillance device is used without a warrant, that an application for approval is made within two business days to an eligible judge and that such approval complies with section 33
- the register of warrants and emergency applications contains the information required by section 47
- that any directions under section 52 have been complied with.

Records relating to the use of protected information obtained by the use of surveillance devices, and the security of those records at various locations, are also inspected.

NSW Police Force

During the reporting period 397 surveillance device warrants were issued and two retrieval warrants were also issued. There was one emergency use of surveillance devices which was subsequently approved. There were 74 revocations in this period.

The majority of records are located at Police Prosecutions, Covert Applications Unit, including applications, warrants, section 51 notices and section 44 reports. In relation to the protected information received as a result of surveillance device warrants, this information is kept with the officer responsible for the warrants at the relevant operational command or local area command. The law enforcement officer responsible for the warrant is responsible for recording the use, communication or publication, and destruction of protected information obtained under their warrant.

Any exceptions we have identified with the NSW Police Force's compliance with the Act are detailed below.

Warrant requirements

Section 17 Applications for a surveillance device warrant

All applications during the period were made to eligible Judges. No applications for a surveillance device authorising the use of a tracking device only were made to eligible Magistrates.

Section 18 Remote Application

Seven (7) applications were made remotely.

All remote applications were notified to the Attorney General and affidavits were provided to the issuing judicial officer within the legislative time frame.

Section 22 Extension and variation of surveillance device warrant

Twenty six (26) warrants were extended during the reporting period, one of these was extended twice. There were three warrants which were varied.

Section 23 Revocation of surveillance device warrant

There were 74 revocations during the reporting period, all of which were revoked by an eligible Judge.

Section 24 Discontinuance of use of surveillance device under warrant

Section 24 (2)(a) requires that a surveillance device which is no longer necessary must be discontinued as soon as practicable. The NSW Police Force uses a Notification of Discontinuation form to record such action. Section 24 (2)(b) further requires that when an application for discontinuation is made, an application is also made for the revocation of the warrant under section 23.

All the warrants which were revoked had been discontinued as soon as practicable.

While the Act requires that a surveillance device be discontinued as soon as practicable after the chief officer of the law enforcement agency is satisfied that the use of the device is no longer necessary, there is no time limit specified for making an application for the revocation of the warrant.

Section 25 Application for retrieval warrant

There were two (2) applications for retrieval warrants, which were granted.

Section 26 Remote application for retrieval warrant

No remote applications were made for retrieval warrants.

Section 30 Revocation of retrieval warrant

No retrieval warrants were revoked.

Emergency authorisation requirements

Section 31 Emergency use of surveillance devices – threat of serious personal violence or substantial property damage

There was one (1) emergency use of surveillance devices under this section.

Section 32 Emergency authorisation - continued use of surveillance devices in participating jurisdiction

There was no emergency use of surveillance device warrants in participating jurisdictions.

Section 33 Application for approval after use of surveillance device without warrant or under emergency authorisation

The application for the emergency use of the surveillance devices was approved in accordance with the Act.

Compliance and monitoring requirements

The law enforcement officer responsible for the warrant is responsible for recording the use, communication or publication, and destruction of protected information obtained under their warrant. We test the compliance of these individual law enforcement officers by conducting 'field' inspections at specialist commands or local area commands throughout metropolitan and regional areas.

This period, regional field inspections were conducted at Lake Illawarra, Shoalhaven and Far South Coast Local Area Commands. Metropolitan field inspections were also conducted at Wetherill Park Region Enforcement Squad.

Section 40 Prohibition on use, communication or publication of protected information

The NSW Police Force developed 'Protected Information' Registers to record the use and communication of protected information, as well as to record the destruction of protected information no longer required for the purposes set out in section 40 (4) or (5) of the Act.

The use of these registers has been sporadic, and many commands use other means to record this information. The Commissioner has determined the use of protected information registers should be standard and established a working group to:

- assess the education/training currently available to investigators on their obligations under the Act
- review the current policies/guidelines about the storage and destruction of protected information
- make recommendations to improve awareness of, and compliance with, the requirements under the Act regarding protected information.

Our senior compliance and investigation officer provides advice on this issue as necessary.

During our field inspections it was noted that Lake Illawarra Local Area Command was not using the Protected Information Registers. However, all other commands inspected were using these registers. Also, protected information relating to a warrant was located in the exhibits room at Lake Illawarra Local Area Command rather than being stored in the specified storage area for protected information obtained by the use of surveillance devices. This was corrected during our inspection.

Section 41 Dealing with records obtained by use of surveillance devices

As already noted, management of the records associated with the use and destruction of protected information is being reviewed by a working group within the NSW Police Force.

Our field inspections conducted at the above-mentioned commands found a general willingness among the officers concerned to be compliant with the Act.

Section 44 Reports to eligible Judge or eligible Magistrate and Attorney General

Section 44 reports were generally received within the time specified in the warrant for all the warrants which were issued during this reporting period. This once again is a significant improvement in timeliness which has now been increasingly sustained over several reporting periods. The previous report noted 33 instances of delays. In this reporting period four (4) reports were delayed: SD15/0445, SD15/0459, SD15/512 and SD15/0547.

There is, however, an issue in these reports with specifying the actual period that devices have been used. Some officers are not providing specific times for the use of the particular devices. This is most prevalent in the use of body worn devices. Staff at Covert Applications have recognised this and are specifically checking this aspect of the reports. When these errors are identified the reports are corrected and the corrected reports are sent to the Eligible Judge and Attorney-General. Inspecting staff have also offered to assist in any future training which may be run by police.

During inspections at Far South Coast Local Area Command there was a slight discrepancy between the dates noted on the protected information obtained under the warrant and the details provided in the section 44 report. This matter is being followed up.

Section 47 Register of warrants and emergency authorisations

The Act requires the chief officer of the law enforcement agency to keep a register of warrants and emergency authorisations. The register is required to specify certain particulars. The NSW Police Force register contained the required particulars.

Evidentiary Certificates

Section 50 Provision for the issue of evidentiary certificates

No evidentiary certificates were checked during this reporting period.

Notifications to the Attorney General

Section 51 Particulars of warrants sought under Part 3 to be notified to the Attorney General

While the NSW Police Force was generally compliant in this area, we noted the following exceptions.

There were several errors in some Section 51 notices and these generally appeared to be the result of either typographical errors or caused by the use of 'cut and paste' from other notices. This has previously been drawn to the attention of the Commissioner. Staff at Covert Applications Unit have recently liaised with the Solicitor-General and have implemented a new procedure which should address this issue and also improve timeliness of surveillance device applications.

This aspect will be checked during the next reporting period.

Section 52 Requirement to inform subject of surveillance

No orders were made requiring the subject of the surveillance to be informed.

Concluding Comments

The NSW Police Force was generally compliant with the requirements of the Act during this reporting period apart from the exceptions discussed above.
